

FORTNIGHTLY NEWSFEED

Welcome to week 8

We are all juggling a variety of responsibilities at present, but hope that you are finding space to enjoy your studies. At Stirling, we're excited to be offering a wide range of online study options for the upcoming months - see below!
Remember reach out to your lecturers if there is anything you need to discuss.

Introducing Online Student Central:

The Stirling homepage now has a range of resources available from one centralised location.

PUBLICATION NEWS

Writing, research and publishing are a significant part of the academic journey, allowing us to participate in social discourse on important issues, and to contribute with unique research. Stirling celebrates the following recent publications:

Congratulations Brian Macallan: 'Getting off the Omnibus: Rejecting free will and soul-making responses to the problem of evil' (Jan 2020) in Open Theology journal. Open access, view here.

Congratulations Stephen Curkpatrick: 'A Comic Wake: Extrapolations from Acts' on Audible & iTunes. View here.

Congratulations Karen Yunia: An Indonesia translation of Stephen Curkpatrick's 'Discovering Parables by Increments' recently published by STJJKI (Churches of Christ College in Indonesia), with foreword by Dr. Hery Susanto

Congratulations Kerrie Handasyde: 'Stories of Lost and Found: Finding a Home in Australian Children's Religious Literature' in the Uniting Church National Historical Society Conference Proceedings (2019). Available online here.

Congratulations Graham Hill: Graham's new book Holding up Half the Sky: A Biblical Case for Women Leading and Teaching in the Church has just been released by Wipf & Stock. Featuring forewords from Grace Ji-Sun Kim and Margaret Mowczko

From the Academic Dean, John Capper:

Learning, working and meeting in this Covid-19 time have shifted dramatically, with meetings moving online from the Boardroom, classes in cyberspace rather than classrooms, and casual conversations out of the staffroom and into the family room. This can be massively stressful – it seems more for some than others. Whether you are stressed yourself or not, some you meet with and possibly those you live with will be feeling the pressure. Here are two articles that may help. The first, from a US seminary academic, picks up the learning dimension well (click here). The second, from Psychology Today, also adds insights (click here). Technology sabbaths are something I have tried to develop over weekends. Keep connected, and keep cool! John
